Paralegal Department News

Guest Speakers and Field Trips

Attorney Charlie Applegate recently spoke to Business Law students about the interesting cases he has had as a criminal defense attorney.

Jennifer Sedna, from the Career Placement Department, spoke to the Law Office Management class about LinkedIn and other networking websites.

In May, Legal Writing students toured the Sonoma County Law Library. The tour guide was our own Empire Law School librarian Kim Tucker, who is also the Executive Director of the Sonoma County Law Library.

The Discovery I class participated in a mock deposition in a conference room at Redwood Reporting. Certified court reporter Lori Lafranchi took down every word as our students asked questions of their deponent. Thank you Lori and Redwood Reporting for giving our legal students a chance to see what it's like to depose a witness.

REAP Holds Legal Writing Workshop at Empire

The Redwood Empire Association of Paralegals held the first in a series of three workshops on legal writing at Empire. The presenters were Legal Department Head Monica Lehre and legal instructor Laura Rosenthal. Thank you Empire Legal Student Association for providing scholarships so that day and evening legal students could attend.

Certified Paralegal Exam

The May Certified Paralegal exam was proctored at Empire College by two legal instructors, Monica Lehre, ACP, and Laura Krieg, CP. The exam is an arduous two-day, multi-section substantive and procedural law test given by the National Association of Legal Assistants (NALA). Recent evening paralegal graduate Jarrette Ascher took time out from her busy new paralegal career at the law firm of Kwansneski & Davis to study and take the exam. We wish her success!

Community Service and Fundraisers

Legal student Andrea Ruiz is working as an English/Spanish interpreter for the Law School's Small Claims Clinic.

ELSA held a bake sale and raised money to fund scholarships for its members to attend special events and seminars where they can network and learn more about the local legal community.

Evening ELSA continued its fundraising tradition of making flower leis available for purchase before and at the July graduation.

Paralegal Success Stories

Nancy Clark, Paralegal, Galanti & Copenhaver, Inc.

"While I was a student in the paralegal program at Empire College, my Legal Department Head arranged an internship for me. The internship primarily consisted of non-profit work, and I felt as though I needed more paralegal experience. My Department Head notified me that Galanti & Copenhaver, Inc was interested in an Empire College Paralegal Intern with the possibility of future employment, and I jumped at the opportunity to learn more. Galanti & Copenhaver, Inc. primarily practices Estate Planning and Trust Administration which was not an area of law that I had intended to practice. However, after completing my internship I found that I really enjoyed practicing in the area of Estate Planning. That is the beauty of internships; you never know what you might learn!

"I had been working as a cashier/manager at Molsberry's Market for a total of 12 years prior to making the decision to change my career. Having graduated from Sonoma State University with a degree in Sociology, I made the decision to attend Empire College because at Empire College your books are ready for you, your class schedule is decided for you, and the class size is small (12 vs. 40-50). Walking across the Graduation stage already employed with a full-time job was very gratifying.

"My advice to students is: network and get involved in ELSA! I was active in ELSA (Empire Legal Student Association) while a student and am currently the vice president of REAP (Redwood Empire Association of Paralegals). The effort you put in to your studies will reflect who you will be as an employee."

Sarah Helstrom, Marcus McMahon & Mariela Valdivia, Paralegals, Law Office of Richard J. Meechan

The Law Office of Richard J. Meechan specializes in worker's compensation and civil litigation. Mr. Meechan is a 1987 graduate of Empire College School of Law. The firm's other attorneys also have Empire College roots – Benjamin Karpilow is an Empire Law School graduate, and Laura Rosenthal is an adjunct professor at Empire Law School and an instructor in Empire's paralegal program.

Congratulations to Legal Department Head Monica Lehre, who obtained her Master's in Legal Studies degree from Empire Law School.

Information Technology Department News

IT Graduate Success Story – Empire Grad Hiring Empire Grads

Scott Schulze, a 2001 graduate of Empire College, is the owner of Fusion Technology Solutions, an I.T. support/managed service provider and cloud services integrator that is rated one of the fastest-growing cloud service providers in the western region by Ingram Micro. During the past year, he has hired three Empire graduates (L-R in photo):

Christopher Sutton, Kevin Rudy, and Michael Patterson, all graduates of the Specialized Associate Degree - Information Technology program.

SCOTT: “The reason I went to Empire College was to get more technical training. After finishing Empire, I got laid off from my employer. That’s when I decided to start my own business. I started doing a lot of work in the mortgage industry and ERP project management for automotive aftermarket companies. After traveling quite a lot, I decided to settle down in Sonoma County and work on building the business. Mortgage had been lucrative, but it evaporated in 2007. That is why Fusion Technology is not industry-specific, and with the advent of the Cloud we have customers everywhere.

“Once you start to hire, you look for a team. Beyond the technical acumen, customer service is the #1 skill I look for. A customer will generally forgive the fact that you did not fix their problem the first time if they know you care about their situation and are genuinely trying to help them. Help Desk Technicians need to sound happy and be empathetic. I consider their work history and how well they will mesh with the team.

“I get a lot of positive feedback about our team. Three of them are Empire College graduates, and I can attest that Empire’s I.T. curriculum is a higher caliber than other local schools. The fact that Empire includes an internship is perfect because it gives students real-world help desk experience and we can see how well the techs will fit with our team. I prefer to hire people with at least their A+ and NET+ certification for help desk positions, and I want them to continue on with their certifications.”

Guest Speakers and Field Trip

On April 15 Justin Hough spoke to the Empire College I.T. department about his experiences in the workplace. Justin is an Empire graduate who now works as a Tier 1 Help Desk Manager for TeamLogicIT in Santa Rosa. Justin stressed that having good people skills is very important for being in I.T. Good customer service and relating to people is one of the main traits employers look for and one of the main reasons he is where he is today. He also recommended that everyone keep in contact with their fellow students. Justin got one of his first I.T. jobs from a fellow student after he graduated. Students should build a network of contacts through a site such as LinkedIn to help with employment. Also, it’s important for students to get their certifications while they are going to school. Empire students have a great opportunity to pass their certifications while they are here; take advantage of it!

On April 21 the Empire College I.T. Department made their annual field trip to the RSA conference at the Moscone Center in San Francisco. Students got to see firsthand some of the newest computer security technologies in action from all of the major players in Information Technology. The event only gets bigger as the Expo filled up two conference rooms, and it seemed the amount of people who showed up for the event was much more than in years past. I.T. security is constantly changing but some themes stayed the same.

There is also a push to get away from the ever-convenient, yet insecure use of passwords. Passwords can be cracked, shared or forgotten. Microsoft made a splash with their new “Windows Hello” logon. Microsoft solves the password problem by using their gaming technology Kinect to incorporate facial recognition. Just sit down in front of your computer; you are now logged in and have access to all your resources!

Once again, many companies were pushing the cloud, managing and monitoring your network through the Internet. This concept of hosted security is only getting bigger with many companies offering this service.

Medical Department News

Medical Success Stories @ Northern California Medical Associates

Kathleen Karp, CCMA-C, Cardiovascular Technician Supervisor

"I was employed as a clinical medical assistant with NCMA after externing here. I started my externship at Santa Rosa Internal Medicine. They were a great team of people and encouraged my independence. Halfway through my externship I switched to cardiology and loved it.

"Initially I was hired in cardiology, then worked per diem in orthopedics. I think it is important to be open to all fields of medicine; you want to get your foot in the door wherever you can. After about a year an opportunity opened up in cardiology. Su Chew, my supervisor, told me I needed to upgrade my CPR skills for ACLS and take a basic arrhythmia class, which I did. For about two years I was a cardiovascular technician, then became the lead cardiovascular technician for our offices in Sonoma and Mendocino Counties, and in May 2015 became the supervisor of eight technicians/medical assistants.

"Before enrolling in Empire's medical program, I was a swim instructor at the YMCA, a private lesson coordinator, life guard instructor, and aquatic coordinator. Then I thought, "You know, I would kind of like to buy a house and have a family one day." I was never really good at long-term education goals, and someone told me about Empire College's short-term, career-focused programs.

"I knew instantly from the first class that I had found my fit at Empire College. I loved my instructors. It was a really good experience. I would not be where I am now in my life without going back to school. The externship was extremely valuable, and I also did volunteer work while attending Empire through which I met some of my current coworkers. The medical world is so small; everybody knows everybody.

"Now I am in a position of training externs myself; we have two from Empire now, Julia Renninger in back office and Veronica Cernokus in front office. I love it when Empire College students come here to extern; I know what I can expect of them. I have never had a poor Empire College extern, but I have had poor externs from other colleges. It may be because of the sequencing of classes at Empire. Cardiology is very difficult; if you can make it here, you can make it anywhere. We support 11 doctors and are a good team."

So what about Kathleen's goals of a house and a family? She got married about a year after graduating from Empire College, and she and her husband now own their own home.

Kandra Gaitan, Lead Communications Representative

"I was a widow at 29 with children and a mortgage. I lost my job as a marketing manager due to downsizing five years ago and went through JobLink for training. They require you to take job search workshops, research colleges, and interview people in the field. I researched SRJC and Empire College. They are both good schools. I chose Empire because of its good reputation and because I needed to get into the work force as soon as possible. It would have taken much longer at SRJC. I took a modified billing/coding administrative program and worked with Empire's placement department to get employment here as a temporary on the scan team. I was hired permanently after one year as a float, and a little over a year ago I became the Lead Communications Representative.

"I appreciate everything Empire did for me. When I stepped through the doors, I didn't think I could go back to school at 40 years old and be successful. I read the Abraham Lincoln quote in the lobby and said, "I can do this." Roni Brown encouraged me tremendously. I will never forget the second day in Medical Terminology class with Melissa Vineyard. I went out to my car and cried because I lacked confidence. Then I turned it around and said, "yes, you can do this," and I got an A on the first test. I said to myself, "I did this; I got it!"

"My mom, Olga Martinez, is a graduate of Empire College as well – from the late 60s/early 70s. She recently retired after a long career in business with AT&T."

“We have been an Empire firm for 25 years.”
 – Richard J. Meechan, Esq.

MARIELA: “My work history includes a variety of jobs. I worked in banking, then for a medical clinic, and in daycare when my boys (now 10 and 5) were young. I wanted to be a paralegal since I was in high school. I graduated in 2000, married young, and started a family. Returning to school as an adult with children is a sacrifice, but it can be done.

“I interned with Steven Turer’s law office before I was finished with my program. I graduated on a Friday and started this job the following Monday. When I was hired, I was doing calendaring for two attorneys, then we added a third. We have a variety of responsibilities, including new client interviews; daily communication with opposing counsel, carriers, and the courts; and going to court. I am happy with my career.”

MARCUS: “I have a background in labor and warehouse work. I graduated from high school in 2007 and was planning to go into the construction trade, but that was in a downturn at the time. One of my friends said, “Did you consider Empire College?” I started out as a business major, but after taking Laura Rosenthal’s Business Law class in which we were studying torts, I decided to switch to legal. I find the law fascinating.

“I was hired after completing my internship here. Part of my responsibilities involve organizing files and helping the firm work toward going paperless.”

SARAH: “Before enrolling at Empire College, I worked in the retail and entertainment fields. My first real job was at Blockbuster, then GameStop; I’m a gamer girl! I worked with Jan in Empire’s admissions department. The process was a month long because I think about things for a while before making a decision, and I was deciding between accounting and paralegal. Ultimately I sat in on one of the Business Law classes and enrolled that day.

“Before graduating from Empire, I was hired here to help with paperwork. I completed my internship here and was then hired as a paralegal. My job involves appointment coordination and editing drafts from the attorney. I have the opportunity to do a fair amount of writing and some research. I like the balance of my job.”

As a group, these graduates emphasized the importance of working on deadlines, stating: “In the legal field, two days prior to a deadline is on time!” They also network with the legal community by attending Sonoma County Women in Law and Redwood Empire Association of Paralegal events. ▲

DLP or Data Loss Prevention systems also seemed to be in high demand. DLPs track the movement of data across an organization to prevent loss, theft or to just be compliant with US laws.

Empire students had a great time, learned many new things, got plenty of free tech goodies and learned a little history! The NSA, FBI and the Department of Homeland Security all had a presence. Not only were they recruiting employees but also gave a little history lesson about cryptography, including the famous WWII enigma machine (photo at right).
